| DOAJ only accepts fully open access journals Open Access is the condition where the copyright holder of a scholarly work grants usage rights to others using an open license (Creative Commons or equivalent) allowing for immediate free access to the work and permitting any user to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of articles, crawl them for indexing, pass them as data to software, or use them for any other lawful purpose. | See DOAJ's definition of open access explained in full. | Yes | |
| The journal website must display its open access statement. Where can we find this information? | Here is an example of a suitable Open Access explained in tuit. Here is an example of a suitable Open Access statement that meets our criteria: This is an open access journal which means that all content is freely available without charge to the user or his/her institution. Users are allowed to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of the articles, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without asking prior permission from the publisher or the author. This is in accordance with the BOAI definition of open access. | No | Link to the journal's open access statement |
